

Final Reflection For The Agriculture Seminar

From participating in the seminar on the development of agriculture how did what you heard support your claims, contradict your claims, and help you understand the impacts agriculture had on the world?

In the seminar about the use of agriculture I was able to use my claims and other's claims to help build on mine and create a strong topic to talk about in the discussion. I was able use other's strong claims to help mine and other's weaker claims to help further mine and prove parts of them wrong. In the seminar some of the people going against my argument had really strong claims making it harder and more challenging. Those thoughts helped me build a better counterclaim. Overall once the seminar was over I was able to use my thoughts and notes to help create a reflection mentally and physically. This experience helped me grow in other seminars and helped me see other perspectives which helped me gain a lot of knowledge on the topic. Plus the info I learned helped me realize how important agriculture is in SS and in the world overall. Seminars are a great tool for learning and are different (for the better) compared to multiple choice tests making them one of my favorites and I'm excited to do more.
